

Cabinet

Written by Hans Summers

Saturday, 01 January 2011 21:43 - Last Updated Monday, 22 December 2014 07:15

Cabinet building is easy with aluminium angle and wood from the DIY store. The advantage of building a box for your equipment compared to buying a box, is that suitable enclosures are very hard to find. When you do find a box the right size, it is invariably very expensive. By building your own, you get exactly the size you want, when you want, and not too expensive!

{gallery}1013/1{/gallery} Here some raw materials: pieces of aluminium angle from the DIY store and
{gallery}1013/2{/gallery} These particular pieces were used to construct the cabinet The aluminium angle

{gallery}1013/3{/gallery} A larger size of aluminium large angle was used to construct a frame for the chassis

{gallery}1013/4{/gallery} Extensive use of aluminium Tiny Scope miniature all-valve oscilloscope project.